Saint Andrew's Noble Order of Royal Scots Guild

May 2006

Greetings to Our most beloved subjects and guests of the realm,

Our new year of progress has started in a most unique way, indeed. Those brave souls who did attend Calaveras Celtic Festival understand full well Our meaning. We did find ourselves in a winter wonderland. Whilst our pavilion survived not the elements, St. Andrews did rise above all obstacles; accordingly our efforts and dedication were appreciated and recognized.

Whether thy hands were put to work in dismantling Our encampment in the snow and muck, or held out graciously as an offer for a dance, or wielded familiar halberd, thy work ethic is to be commended. For a surprising amount of guests did walk through the front gates; they came through snow and sleet determined to attend this festival out of love and did deserve equal dedication.

We have rested well and shall now prepare for further progress. The absence of the Shasta Highlands Faire is most regretful to all, howsoever St. Andrew's has many other events to attend and we look forward with eager anticipation to when we shall next meet.

With fond regard,

MARICR

✧ A Missive from the Guild Master ✧

Good Gentles of St. Andrews,

It is with great pride that I tell you of our successful beginning to this season of Progress. We have been receiving new members with grand talents and efforts to bring forth to Her Majesty's court! Our group continues to be well received both at Faires and Schools, in fact we received special recognition from the Calaveras Faire Board for our steadfast participation through the snow and muck! This was an honor of the likes we have never seen, and it did fill me with great pride knowing that it was due to our loyal and hardworking members!

We are soon coming up on some important events, Faires, Games and School presentations. Please check your calendars and do your best to attend all that you can - it is our team work and attendance that make us as grand as we are, it takes all of us to put on our show for the crowds - be they patrons or school children! Your time and efforts are greatly appreciated - and I hope it is for the fun that you come as well!

I do look forward to seeing you all very soon as we escort Her Royal Majesty to the next shire on our progress.

I do remain,

Sir Drew Douglas MacQuain
Duke of Dunvegan Castle
Lord Chancellor of Scotland and the Isles
Cardinal Knight of the Knights and Dames of Saint John of Jerusalem
First Knight of Saint Andrews

PRAY HEED!

~ Good Gentles of Scotland ~

I do pray for your assistance. This past Winter I did receive a brief and rather cryptic missive from my goodly husband, Francois H'elie that he would leave his business in Bairds in the capable hands of his brother and business partner Jean H'elie. Msr. H'elie did advise me that he would make the difficult journey during the Winter months to join me here in Scotland. As 'tis been one year since we parted and I returned to my home in Scotland, I received and read his missive with great joy and looked forward to the reunion with my husband. I now fear he has fallen on misfortune or perhaps...foul play as he has not arrived and I have heard nary a word. Msr. H'elie is an aging gentle man of means, with a persistent cough and troubled with gout. His locks and beard are speckled with distinguished gray. I pray that all will spread my concern near and far and return any information regarding his whereabouts and wellbeing.

I Remain,

Lady Brittah Sutherland H'elie

⌘ The Dogs of War ⌘

To the Members of the Royal Guard Household and those that would like to join us.

We started this year off in grand style with Opening of Parliament. The guard had a great attendance and strongly announced their approval to those who were raised up to positions in the guilds government.

At prop repair day, many of us showed up and jumped right in with their abilities of woodwork and repair. We did have a sewing day where we changed the look of the kilts. Everyone pitched in and did what they could. We did have help from some of the wives and we thank them most graciously.

Angel's Camp was exciting this year. The weather threw everything it could at us and we marched on, through the sleet and snow. Our feet were wet and cold, but we diligently guarded the queen and performed our trooping shows for the public.

Our dining out was a grand event, with only a few members not in attendance. The food and the company were wonderful. Afterwards, we gathered in the parking lot for a little swordplay. What fun!

Livermore is our next fair and there are hopes for a fine trooping show and maybe a battle pageant. We have a parade through the grandstands and something new this year, a joust. This will be a fine time to do some recruiting for new members.

We have started the year off just fine, now we must look to becoming better. Remember, practice makes perfect and that is what the Guard should strive for.

We Are The Dogs Of War!

⌘ The Ladies in Waiting ⌘

Good my Lords and Ladies,

It has been a most interesting year so far. The Ladies in Waiting have, as always, seen to Our Most Gracious Majesty's comfort, but this year has put us to the test. St. Mary's school was our first outing this year. Attended by some 18 Guild members, it featured our own Lady Seaton as Queen. It was great to see all the hard work done by the children and to teach as well as have fun with them. The only drawback was the weather, it rained.

Opening of Parliament was a very busy time with so much business to attend to: the installation of a Star Chamber, a Royal Knighting, and the creation of a new government. The Ladies did exceptionally well in caring for the Queen during this time. A special thanks to Lady Fleming for taping the night's activities as we can now see us as the public sees us and I feel this can only help our stage performance.

Angel's Camp was another test of our household as we had never performed in the snow before. As with the entire Guild, we learned to adapt and I believe we did a very good job. For a change, Her Majesty had heat instead of a fan and not once was ice mentioned for her cup. A special thanks to Lady Seaton for providing warming pads for Her Most Gracious Majesty's hands and feet. I'm sure she appreciated them very much.

As we look forward to the remainder of the year, I hope many more fond memories are out there for us to have. Looking forward to seeing you all at Livermore.

I Remain,

Dame Mary Beaton
Royal Countess of Grinch and Glenrothes
Countess of Grinch and Bandon
Chamberlain of the Ladies in Waiting

Dia duit!

The year has started off quite well for the Irish House, with Opening of Parliament and the promotion of Ian MacCarraig from the Children's House. He received a Celtic Dragon pendant as a token to remind him of this time and he is looking forward to joining the men on the battlefield. His father, Captain Morgan, has given him a battle sword so that he might prepare himself for the battles to come.

Also at Opening of Parliament I was given the Chain of Office for the Irish Household. I hope to serve Her Majesty and St. Andrews well in my new office, and I thank Her Majesty and Sir Drew for this opportunity.

Opening of Parliament was followed by a wonderful (but cold) weekend at the Calaveras Celtic Festival. In spite of the weather, or maybe because of it, everyone kept a positive attitude and had a great time. The new folk who were joining us for the first time were real troopers! Rohgair to you all. Many of us were able to spend a great deal of time around the fairgrounds interacting with the public, and we had a wonderful time. Many thanks go to Her Majesty and Sir Drew, for allowing us more freedom due to the cold and snowy weather.

The new pavilion held up well under the snow, and we are looking forward to our next fair, where we will get to play more with everyone. We'd like to develop some gigs with the other households, so if anyone has some ideas please let me know, I'd love to talk.

For those of you interested, I'm including some Gaelic expressions which might be useful when interacting with the Irish:

English	Irish	Pronunciation
Good Day	Dia Duit	Djah gwieh
How are you?	Conas ta tu?	Co-nas tah tu
I am fine	Ta me go breá	tah-may go brah

Then there are some very interesting curses, which I can just imagine an Irishman saying, like: "Smothering and Drowning on You" and "May the cat eat you, and may the devil eat the cat". Come and see me at the next fair to find out the Irish translation of these. I have several pages of sayings that I can share, including more insults :-)

As always we are looking for some good Irish Mercenaries and Irish lasses to add to our ranks, so please let us know if you come across any likely prospects!

Clatter from the Highlands

Good Den to all of the Highlands and St. Andrews.

It hath been some tyme since a missive hath been sent from myne owne hand. There seems to have been much written about the cold and snow covered faire at Calaveras so I will not say more on that.

I shall do my humble or not so humble best to say welcome to those whom have traveled with us for many miles and those whom willst travel many with us from here on.

Returning to progress with our merry band of miscreants the Chieftain and his goodly wife Mistress Fi. (Cookie); Mistress Morna MacGregor; the Elliot's: Master Cullen, Mistress Gwendolynn and lovely wee Laurie; Mistress Bernadette willst be playing with us again as myne owne sister; Mistress Jessica MacGregor willst be back again; as well as Master Angus for a limited tyme.

Adding to our household this year and we hope for many to come: Mistress Akira and her sister Mistress Kyla the two lasses seeking refuge in the highlands; Mistress Elena who is also a MacPhearson (like the Chieftain); Mistress Katie MacLeod and her goodly Husband Philip John Alexander who joined with us after Calaveras; and Mistress Ceana and her son Ulrick whom were brought to us by Gwendolynn and Cullen.

Welcome to the Highlands and St. Andrews all. We do look forward to a wonderful season getting to know the newer members and renewing old friendships throughout the year. Please do try to make the remaining training sessions, dance practices and walkabouts with some of our faire family.

Ever Loyal to Her Majesty
Chieftain Fleber MacPhearson

Her Majesty's Jewels

To the wee ones, and the wee ones at heart,

I want to thank you so very much for the warm welcome at Angels Camp. I know we all had fun playing in the snow and walking in the parade with the dragons. I would like to also thank Lady Kyra for showing me the ropes as the new Head of Household. I could not have done it without her help.

I look forward to seeing you all at Livermore.

Hugs,

Lady Morrigan MacKenna
Chamberlain of the Children's Household

Thor's Hammer Royal Honors

At the beginning of all of the Faires where we perform, the Star Chamber is asked to take most particular note of outstanding efforts during the event. At the end of the weekend, a vote is cast amongst them, and a Thor's Hammer is awarded during the Hug Circle to that person whom the majority agree made the greatest individual contribution to our success. This is a once in a lifetime award, a signal honor, and is worn proudly by each recipient, for all who look thereupon shall honor them as they well deserve, as one of the most valued supporters of our Guild.

2006 Honorees:
Who will be next?

Ruffing it with the Courtiers and Ambassadors

I've sometimes wondered what it would be like to do a fair in weather similar to that experienced in Scotland. At the Calaveras Celtic Fair at Angels Camp this year, I got to find out.

If you weren't there or hadn't heard, we had snow. Not snow flurries which melted when it hit the ground, a real snow storm with inches of snow that remained on the ground the entire day.

There were rumors of snow, credible enough that I purchased chains for my car. As I drove up to Angels Camp, I snickered at my worries of snow. The weather was cloudy but relatively dry. Everything looked pretty normal, except for a snow plow which raced past me in the opposite direction. It was then I noticed the first snowflakes on my windshield.

"No big deal," I thought. "We had snow flurries a couple of years ago at Angels Camp."

Then I noticed the landscape was looking awfully...white. So were my knuckles. I was born and raised in California, and I've never driven in the snow.

I arrived at my hotel and found a "Be Back Soon!" sign at the front desk. I crossed the parking lot, the snow covered parking lot, and had dinner at Perko's with Lady Fleming and Lord Duncan. While I had been fretting over the icy roads, a group of hearty St. Andrews members that included Fleming and Duncan had put together our camp. It was the first heroic deed I'd heard about this fair, the first of many.

The following morning, the snow was coming down even harder than before. The hotel's satellite dish was buried so there was no TV, and the fair looked very much in doubt. A group of us had breakfast at Perko's, being served by a skeleton crew serving staff and a single cook. The snow storm that was threatening the fair was preventing the restaurant workers from coming to work. As we looked out at the snowglobe-like vistas, we got the call. The fair was on.

I went back to my room and hurriedly dressed. Many of us were driven to the fairgrounds by Johan von Plyme, a Tahoe resident who has a lot of experience in driving in snow and an SUV large enough to ferry family sized groups up the road.

The camp was uninhabitable. The Queen's Tent had collapsed under the weight of snow, and the white stuff was piled inches deep on the lawn. We set up an improvised camp down near the gate and did meet and greet with the patrons who decided coming to see us was worth braving the snow and the slush. Cullen shoveled a path clear of snow so people could approach Her Majesty, and the Queen's Guard mustered and drilled with their halberds, even as the snow continued to fall.

I'd heard that people had spent the night in tents and in their cars the night before. I saw people walking around with wet footwear all weekend. And in spite of all this, I saw people doing their jobs, as if it was 70 degrees and sunny.

The following morning, our guild was awarded a Thor's Hammer for its good work in difficult circumstances. On Sunday, the circumstances didn't get any easier. If anything, it was colder than the day before. I had heard the wind chill factor was 24 degrees, and while we had some snow, we also had hail and rain too. And yet there unsinkable St. Andrews was, doing meet and greet, having dance shows, giggling with other guilds. The previous evening, we had packed up our soggy encampment, so on Sunday we had the unique experience of marching in the ring out parade and then going straight out the gates and home.

I doubt anyone who attended this fair will ever forget it. It was a fair where heroism was commonplace. Not since the Fair Oaks Inferno of over a decade ago has this guild acquitted itself so well, and I am proud to be a member of St. Andrews.

Lord James Stewart, Chamberlain

SONNET TO LORD BOTHWELL 2

written in 1567

She does your bidding for her honour's sake.

*I do your bidding and have naught but strife
 Since, unlike her, alas, I'm not your wife.
 And though this precedence she cannot take,
 She uses constancy to benefit her name*

-For there's small honour as mere mistress of your house-

*While I, for loving you, receive only abuse.
 And I will not give way to her, nor play her game.*

*She does not grasp the danger you are in;
 I cannot rest for fear of what may be.*

She made your acquaintance through her family:

*I bring you love and thus defy my kin.
 But nonetheless you doubt if I be true
 And place your trust in her loyalty to you.*

☞ Mary "La Flamina" Fleming ☞

Mary Fleming, born in 1542, was not only nobly born, but royal as well. She shared a common grandfather with Mary Stuart, James IV. Fleming so closely resembled the Queen, that they could pass for sisters.

Mary Fleming was given the nickname "La Flamina" because she was considered the flower of the flock. When the Queen was forced to go to France for her safety, Mary Fleming was one of the four Mary's that went with her. Fleming's mother, Janet Stewart, went with them as governess of the young Queen. As the story goes, she did not stay long for she was sent back to Scotland. She had gained the King of France's favor, and was carrying his child (and flaunting it). This did not affect the deep friendship that developed between Fleming and the Queen.

La Flamina was the only one of the four Mary's who would take the young queen's dares and could outdo the queen in mischief. She often shared the Queen's bedchamber when she did not want to be alone.

Like the Queen, she enjoyed the games and festivities of court life. The Queen and her Mary's would often dress as boys and sneak out of the castle to have fun in the shire. They were very athletic and much preferred being on horse back to travel than being in a carriage. Along with the other Mary's, Fleming was educated with Mary. She could read and write French, was taught music, needlework and religion.

In 1564, William Maitland courted Fleming. When the Queen gave her blessing, they married on January 6, 1566. They had one son, James, and a daughter, Margaret. In 1573, Fleming became a widow when Maitland committed suicide prior to the fall of Edinburgh castle.

✧ A Missive from the Assitant Guild Master ✧

Greetings good Gentles,

Yez, 'tis I, Dame Bronwynne, happily writing this missive from my castle in sunny California. The rumors are true, our move to Maine has been cancelled, we will be staying put for a while longer. Details for those who are interested can be explained at Livermore Shire, as I will be able to attend to Her Majesty and the Court.

I did wish to share the good news with you all! And I do hope to see you all very soon! I celebrate that I will remain close to my guild family!

Assistant Guild Master

Sonnet to Lord Bothwell 1 written in 1567

*Lord, grant your mercy unto me:
Teach me some way that he may know
My love for him is not an empty show
But purest tenderness and constancy.
For does he not, alas, ev 'n now possess
This body and this heart which would not flee
Discord, dishonour, nor uncertainty,
Nor family hurt,
nor evil 's worst distress.*

*For his sake,
I value all my friends as dust
And in my enemies
I seek to place my trust.
For him, my conscience and good name to chance I've cast:
I would renounce the world,
were it his whim:
I'd gladly die if it should profit him.
What more is there to prove my love steadfast?*

James Hepburn, the 4th Earl of Bothwell, has written a rather sensitive missive to James Stewart, the Earl of Moray and half brother to our Sovereign. An unknown scoundrel has intercepted the missive and has posted it here for all to see.

James Stewart, Earl of Moray ~

Good Sir, as a servant of Her Majesty I have become increasingly concerned about Her Majesty's welfare and security. We are both well aware that as a Papist Her Majesty follows the teaching of the Pope and that Her devotion to Her faith is of great concern for many in Scotland. As with ye and I, the majority of Scotland are Reformists, the one true faith. Many are concerned that Her Majesty will force the realm to follow Her beliefs. As ye are well aware Her Majesty has made every attempt to reassure all of us, to include the Earl of Glencairn, and of course Archibald Campbell, Earl of Argyle that Her Majesty has no intention of imposing her beliefs on the people of Scotland and will allow us to follow our true teachings. Despite Her Majesty's reassurances, there are those who do not take Her Majesty at Her word. While I do not condone the teachings of the Pope, I am without reservation loyal to Her Majesty. Her Majesty is our Sovereign by right of birth and as ordained by God. I fear those who are distrustful of Her Majesty's promises of religious tolerance will attempt to undermine Her reign. Certainly as a Scot and as Her Majesty's brother there can be no question as to your loyalty to the Throne. There are those who have cast doubt on your sincerity as they question your relationship with England and the imposter who sits on the throne of that land. All are aware that Her Majesty should rightfully rule England as well as Scotland. Certainly ye are aware that when the Congregation of which ye and Argyle had an association, was willing to accept funds from England in the year of our Lord 1559, the stage was set by those men for a Reformist Rebellion against Her Majesty's mother Mary de Guise, Regent. Certainly the Rebellion was motivated by faith, but none the less a rebellion against the Throne and Her Majesty. By the Grace of God I was able to intercept John Cockburn and deprive the Rebels of the help they needed and exposed England's pretense of neutrality. I have not forgotten yer attempts to pursue me. Even with your 2000 men you were unable to defeat me as I cleverly hid in Haddington disguised as a kitchen maid. The family who aided me has my pledge of support and reward for the next 200 years. I am confident that ye have seen the error of yer ways, and as yer sister has returned to Scotland and taken Her rightful place all involved have reconsidered and are loyal to our Sovereign.

I do anxiously await yer reassurances that Her Majesty can depend on yer loyalty and service to the Crown.

I Remain in Loyal Service to Her Majesty Given by My Hand on this the 30th of March in the Year of Our Lord 1562,

James Hepburn
Fourth Earl of Bothwell
Sheriff of Berwick, Haddington, and Edinburgh
Baillie of Lauderdale
Lord High Admiral of Scotland

The Rules of Courtly Love (late 12th century)

1. Marriage is no real excuse for not loving.
2. He who is not jealous cannot love.
3. No one can be bound by a double love.
4. It is well known that love is always increasing or decreasing.
5. That which a lover takes against the will of his beloved has no relish.
6. Boys do not love until they arrive at the age of maturity.
7. When one lover dies, a widowhood of two years is required of the survivor.
8. No one should be deprived of love without the very best of reasons.
9. No one can love unless he is impelled by the persuasion of love.
10. Love is always a stranger in the home of avarice.
11. It is not proper to love any woman whom one would not be ashamed to marry.
12. A true lover does not desire to embrace in love anyone except his beloved.
13. When made public love rarely endures.
14. The easy attainment of love makes a little value; difficulty of attainment makes it prized.
15. Every lover regularly turns pale in the presence of his beloved.
16. When a lover suddenly catches sight of his beloved, his heart palpitations.
17. A new love puts flights to an old one.
18. Good character alone makes any man worthy of love.
19. If love diminishes, it quickly fails and rarely revives.
20. A man in love is always apprehensive.
21. Real jealousy always increases the feeling of love.
22. Jealousy, and therefore love, are increased when one suspects his beloved.
23. He whom the thought of love vexes eats and sleeps very little.
24. Every act of a lover ends in the thought of his beloved.
25. A true lover considers nothing good except what he thinks will please his beloved.
26. Love can deny nothing to love.
27. A lover can never have enough of the solaces of his beloved.
28. A slight presumption causes a lover to suspect his beloved.
29. A man who is vexed by too much passion usually does not love.
30. A true lover is constantly and without intermission possessed by the thought of his beloved.
31. Nothing forbids one woman from being loved by two men or one man by two women.
